Introducing George Wade to Our Jury Panel

Article Number: HXT-0027

An International Guest Juror for the Upcoming Photography Contest

Location: Nova Scotia, Annapolis Valley, Canada

Authored by: Istiak Ahmed Mozumder, Chief Editor

George Wade is a Canadian astrophotographer based in Nova Scotia's Annapolis Valley, where he was born and raised. His work focuses on vibrant nightscapes that combine dramatic celestial skies with striking foreground landscapes, revealing the colour and depth of the universe.

He began photography while working as a fireworks display designer and technician, where documenting large shows helped him develop strong long-exposure photography skills that later translated naturally into astrophotography. For the past nine years, he has dedicated himself to capturing bold night skies and carefully composed landscapes.

Through his work in the fireworks industry, George has travelled extensively, developing a deep appreciation for remote locations and dark skies. His photography aims to reveal the hidden colours and structures of the cosmos that are invisible to the human eye.

He studied Recreation Management and Business at Acadia University in Nova Scotia, where he also played varsity soccer. His work is regularly featured on respected photography platforms and news outlets worldwide.

Behind the Invitation: After publishing the merit list of the winners and their images on Instagram, I was busy replying to the comments and inquiries from photographers. A lot of them asked when the next contest would be organized; even a few who did not participate in the last contest also asked me about it, as they were not able to participate in such an international event without any participation fees.

Then I saw a love reaction on our post from a verified photographer. I went into his profile and was astonished by the images he was capturing. I did not wait any longer; I visited his website and invited him via email to join our International Jury Panel. To my surprise, he agreed to join our non-profit, student-led photography organization as an international guest juror.
